RE: FW: Dig recall

Thanks Jill - however, this press release does not specify that this is a patient-level recall. However, given that we have found these double-thickness products in one of our facilities tells me that we should be returning and replacing with our pharmacy providers. Evidently, Pharmerica is still today refusing to replace in certain areas. I plan to call each of my pharmacies today to verify their process. Any more info that you can give me would be appreciated. I call the Stericycle 800 number yesterday and the person I spoke to was not very informed.

Al, this press release was issued to all Mylan customers in conjunction with the FDA. Our customers were instructed to notify their customers. Unsure what PharMerica's processes were for notifying their customers. Perhaps the people at PharMerica who monitor email alerts from the FDA on drug recalls could explain their protocols. Hope this helps.

FW: Dig recall

Jill - see note below from one of our facilities in Massachusetts served by PharMerica in Brocton. Please make sure the pharmacies are aware that this is a patient-level recall. I am not sure that all LTC pharmacies are aware of this. As of late yesterday, PharMerica was telling us that this was pharmacy-level recall only. thanks

Subject: Dig recall

Please be advised that Lynne Farrell, CSC reports finding a card of digoxin with one double thickness tablet at GL-Gloucester. The card had 4 tablets remaining - one of which she reported was obviously of double thickness. The facility is serviced by the PharMerica in Brockton. The facility is following the steps outlined in the guidance document released yesterday, is monitoring the resident and will notify the pharmacy. Lynne brought this to my attention as it was reported to some facilities yesterday by pharmacy consultants that their supplies were not affected by this recall ... Fortunately, the facility knew otherwise.

FYI ...

Fw: Digitek Recall

Ann,

I am forwarding to you the initial correspondence from yesterday, see below, that was not included in the history on today's email correspondence. That is everything just so you have all of the pieces. Thanks for your direction.

Re: Digitek Recall

Hey Al,

I hope you are doing well.....the bad news for us, all lots need to be returned.
The good news for you, your nurses don't have to guess at the thickness.

The recall is a class 1 patient level recall for ALL lots. They should be returning all product down to the consumer level.

No idea on when they will be manufacturing after that...Steri-cycle is handling that recall for our subsidiary, Activis.

I hope that helps.

Digitek Recall

Jill - I just need to know if Mylan will reimburse pharmacies for Digitek returned from nursing homes for credit? As I understand, this is not a patient-level recall at this time, but we need some guidance. I hate to rely on my nurses to verify that the tablet is the correct thickness. Thanks

Ann,

Do you have information on when and if Mylan will be reintroducing Digitek back into the market? It's also imperative Cardinal receive the lot numbers affected by the
